Press Release

Trade Republic hits 100,000 child savings accounts just weeks after launch.

- In less than two months, families have opened over 100,000 Child Savings Accounts with Trade Republic to support their children in building wealth easily and affordably.
- This summer, Trade Republic is boosting its support for young savers with a 100 euro ETF-bonus for every Child Savings Account opened between July 22 and August 19.
- Existing Trade Republic users can also participate and receive a 100 euro stock-bonus by referring friends who open a Child Savings Account.

Berlin, July 22, 2025 – Trade Republic has reached a major milestone: 100,000 Child Savings Accounts have been opened in less than two months since launch. For the first time, parents can easily and affordably invest for their children's future, laying a financial foundation at a time of a growing pension gap. Trade Republic is now making it even easier to start early: families who open a Child Savings Account before August 19 will receive a 100 euro ETF-bonus. This gives parents a head start on the "Frühstart-Rente" initiative planned for 2026. Existing customers can also benefit by inviting friends: if their friends open a Child Savings Account, both parties will receive 100 euro in shares.

"Our children will grow up in an uncertain pension system and will need to save far more privately than previous generations," says Christian Hecker, co-founder of Trade Republic. "We're proud that so many of our customers have already recognized this challenge and acted quickly. With our 100 euro ETF-bonus, we want to encourage even more families to start saving for their children's future – because starting early makes the difference, whether for university or retirement."

With the Child Savings Account, Trade Republic offers an important building block for starting a private pension plan for the next generation. The Child Savings Account includes all the proven features: free savings plan execution, 2 percent interest annually on the entire balance, and no custody fees. More than 100,000 Child Savings Accounts have already been opened in the first weeks since launch.

Until August 19, families can benefit from the 100 euro ETF-bonus for every Child Savings Account opened. Account opening is fully digital and can be completed in minutes via the app. The conditions to receive the bonus are simple: a minimum deposit of 100 euro into the Child Savings Account and at least three trades within the first 21 days. New or existing customers who successfully refer others to open a Child Savings Account are eligible for a 100 euro stock-bonus – provided the referred customers meet these requirements.

The Trade Republic Child Savings Account is held in the child's name, giving parents the additional advantage of utilizing their child's annual tax allowance of approximately 13,000 euro. Over time, this can save families thousands of euros in taxes – a key benefit. Trade Republic also goes one step further with "Trade Republic Kindergeld": Trade Republic and Vanguard will reinvest the ongoing fund costs of selected Vanguard ETFs directly back into the child savings account every month, until the child turns 18. This ensures that every euro invested works fully for the child's wealth-building.

The child savings account also embraces a community-driven approach: with the new "Savings Patrons" feature, friends and family can regularly contribute to the child's savings account. Financial planning becomes a shared responsibility – turning the child savings account into a true gift for the future.
