Vienna, 2nd July 2026 – Trade Republic is launching its whole new trading technology with benefits for the customer. The new Best Price algorithm finds the lowest price to buy and the highest price to sell. The core is the aggregated orderbook which unifies prices for any stock across all relevant liquid exchanges, for any order size, free of extra cost. In addition Trade Republic adds the new Direct Price order. Customers can select from 30 exchanges, such as Xetra, Euronext or Nasdaq, for every order. Highest level of transparency for the clients. The app shows live data for the aggregated orderbook as well as the individual exchanges' orderbooks free of charge. The new technology also opens a new business line for the company for advanced investors. Trade Republic introduces an inhouse build Web Terminal. Active investors can use advanced charting, screeners and live market data. All at no additional cost.

"What our engineers have built is a major step for our customers. We are connecting customers to 30 global exchanges, processing live market data in real time and turning complex market infrastructure into a simple product experience," says Christian Hecker, Co-Founder of Trade Republic. "With the scale of more than 10 million customers, we can give people access to tools and market infrastructure that were previously built for institutional investors, banks and hedge funds. This is what democratising investing means to us."

Orders are executed at the Best Price across all relevant exchanges against Trade Republic. The Best Price is identified by comparison of real-time tradable quotes. Customers continue to benefit from only a 1 € trade settlement fee (plus third party cost and spreads).

To increase transparency, Trade Republic is adding a global order book, showing bid and ask prices across exchanges. Customers who want to choose an exchange, such as Xetra, Euronext, NYSE or Nasdaq, can place Direct Orders for just 2 € per trade, independent of the order size.

Alongside the new trading infrastructure, Trade Republic is launching Web Terminal, a new web trading experience for active investors. Available at no additional cost, it includes advanced charting, customisable workspaces, stock and derivative screeners, portfolio analytics and live market data for key exchanges.

With access to 30 exchanges, the new Best Price algorithm, transparent pricing information and advanced analytical tools, Trade Republic continues its mission to give all Europeans simple, fair and transparent access to the financial system to build wealth over time.
